

What Is A Good Church?

A Good Church Is:

❖ A Church Where You Will Be Loved

When you are loved in your church, they notice whether or not you are there and genuinely care when you are missing.

❖ A Church Where The Word Of God Is Clear

Sermons and Bible Teaching should be easy to follow and practical enough to base real-life decisions on.

❖ A Church Where Teaching Is Biblical

Sermons and lessons must be taken straight from the Bible. Only the Word of God has life-changing power.

❖ A Church That Cares About The Whole Person

We are more than just a soul. A church must be prepared to minister as well to the social, emotional and material needs of its members.

❖ A Church Where Spiritual Activities Are The Main Attractions

A healthy church enjoys prayer, Bible study, serving the needs of others and spreading the good news of salvation, both locally and around the world.

❖ A Church Involved In Community Improvement

Churches should always be good community partners. Churches should be involved with its neighbors, aware of community problems and seeking real solutions. A church should strive to be the central focal point of its community.

❖ A Church Where People Are Real

Church must be a place where smiles are genuine and sterling character is just as important on Monday as it is on Sunday. Being able to place your trust in fellow members is of the highest importance.

❖ A Church That Has Something For Everyone

Singles are important, senior citizens are important, children are important, couples are important and all of them should have exciting ministries and activities aimed at meeting their unique needs.

❖ A Church Where Godly Living Is Taken Seriously

A good church seeks to rescue its members when they fall into immorality rather than ignoring them. According to Matthew chapter 18, church discipline is not optional—it is a clear command and is clearly the loving response to sin.

❖ A Church With Stimulating Worship

Every worship service should bring our hearts into direct contact with the God of the universe. Only then are we revived, refreshed and refueled to soar through another week with strength and joy.

❖ A Church With Good Business Practices

Members' contributions are kept strictly confidential. How money is spent is kept very transparent. Accounting procedures and business transactions must be ethical and commendable.

✓ Conclusion

You owe it to yourself and you owe it to your loved ones to consider very carefully and prayerfully what a good church is and where you should be attending. Pray about it and let us help you!
